ULTRASOUND REPORT

The skin of both lower limbs are thickened and noted are multiple dilated fluid channels with a cobblestone appearance extending from the calf to the ankle and foot.

Also noted at the upper thigh of both lower limbs are multiple (about 3 each) benign-appearing axillary lymph nodes.

The common and superficial femoral, popliteal veins are of normal caliber and shows normal flow on color and spectral Doppler Interrogation. No intraluminal pathologies noted.

The accompanying arteries are grossly normal.

Impression:

- ☐ Features Suggestive of Bilateral Cellulitis
- ☐ Normal Lower Limb Vascular Doppler study of Both lower limbs.

Sonographer: Rosemond Adu-Sarkodie
